FAITH OF PEOPLE DEMONSTRATED BY RECENT FLURRY

Republican Party Safe Because Administration Has Kept Pace With Character Development of Population and Confidence is Unshaken.

BRYAN ONLY BIG DEMOCRAT.

(Staff Correspondence.)
Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—Can anarchy thrive on a full stomach? Or can the Democratic party win in times of national prosperity?

Anarchy will propagate itself in ratio to the empty stomach in a nation, and to the fact that there have been few empty stomachs in the United States thus far in its career. Is due the credit of the sickly condition of that movement among Americans. What unrest there may have been so far has found adequate expression of socialism of various degrees, which has been sufficient not because it is like anarchy but because it is a radical change over existing forms. When bad conditions obtain among any considerable number of the population, the government will be charged with it.

Political parties remain dominant so long as they serve the people generally in a satisfactory manner. Here as in the anarchy, people want a change only when the existing authority becomes oppressive or manifestly works hardship. Reducing the political situation in the United States to these principles, has the Republican party gotten to the point where the people will trouble themselves to make a change? Have the principles for which the party stands outlived their usefulness or become oppressive? Who will answer these questions can say which party will be successful next November.

Just as a full stomach takes the sting out of anarchy, so does national prosperity remove any effective complaint the opposition may have against the party in power. People may be mildly aroused by fiery denunciation, but if it rains on election day, or business is moderately rushing, they won't consider that they have struck a blow at the nation's vitality if they fail to vote. In elections as in all other affairs of life, self-interest is the actuating motive and if the only result of an election will be to change masters, the majority will prefer to keep the old officers, who have the added virtue of experience.

This principle is not merely true when the Republican party is in power and the Democratic party is the opposition. Should the Republican party fail to keep pace with the growth of ideas in the people, the Democrats will find the flank open for a successful attack, for the party out of power generally has a better knowledge of popular sentiment. But when the Republican party keeps pace with the character-development of the people, as under Roosevelt it has, there is little prospect of Democratic success. Had the Republican party clung to its ultra conservative stand-pat policy through all the growth of popular ideas on corporate corruption, already it would have been a foregone conclusion that the Democrats would win next November. Roosevelt, by reading correctly the changing conditions, saved his party from defeat and emptied the Democratic sails of their wind. In taking a live interest in his successor he is showing superior statesmanship, because a backward movement by the party now would be fatal.

Faith in President.
As long as the people believe that Roosevelt stands for the Republican party, the party will continue largely successful. That the Republican party has suffered no greater damage from the recent panic is due to this linking of Roosevelt with the party. The mass of the people will not charge the party with it. Roosevelt's party enemies could ponder profitably on this fact. Not in American political history has an industrial reaction so extensive resulted in so little damage to the party in power. The inquiry into his relief measures is only desultory because the people believe that whether they were the best or not, they at least were attempted in behalf of their best interests. Many mistakes will be forgiven where it is believed they were made in the service of the people and not from trying to serve some particular class or group.

Some alarm is evident among politicians, because of a tendency to reduce principles to personalities. They say that individuals are becoming

NEEDED ANOTHER ONE.
Thirteen prisoners sat ranged on the bench in the police court this morning, when Judge Cross rapped for order. Chief Collins and City Attorney Harrison observed the ill-omen about the same time, and remarked about it. That settled it. Nobody there would admit that he was a bit superstitious, not even the prisoners, but before anything more was done, a defendant, who had been released on his own recognizance was induced to submit to rearrest and take his seat on the bench. Then court proceeded with dispatch.

SWINDLED MANY OLD SOLDIERS OF THE CIVIL WAR

Washington, Dec. 26.—After having made $16,000 according to his own statements from old soldiers of the civil war, their widows and children, A. W. Griffin, of Rolla, Okla., has been deprived of the use of the mails. Griffin conducted a land office and advertised himself as "Government land, local or interior department." It is denied that he is a government agent of any sort.

Broke His Arm.
Artes Skilton, colored, a messenger boy for Levy's store at 317 Broadway, was thrown from his wheel while going out Kentucky avenue Tuesday night and his arm was broken.

ONLY MINOR ACCIDENTS REPORTED AFTER CHRISTMAS CELEBRATION

Inspection of Apparently Defunct Firecracker, Battle With Roman Candles and Fall Causes of Injuries.

James Polk, a machinist employed at the Illinois Central shops, slipped and fell on the steps of the front entrance of the Palmer House yesterday afternoon and his right leg was broken. The injured man was carried to the office of Dr. Hearne in the Brookhill building, where the break was dressed, and he was later sent to the railroad hospital.

Toy Cannon Explodes.
The explosion of a toy cannon, which Pete Voight, son of Emory Voight, of Fourth and George streets, was shooting early Christmas morning, caused many people in that neighborhood to think a serious accident had occurred. The boy was unhurt by the explosion with the exception of being slightly dazed for a few moments by the concussion.

The Usual Result.
Delay in the explosion of a fire cracker instigated an investigation by Maddox Vize, the ten-year-old son of Dr. B. J. Vize, 296 Clements street, yesterday afternoon about 3

Some Talk of Compromise Indulged in and Threats of Business Boycotts and Further Depredations.

Hopkinsville, Dec. 26.—(Special.)—Night riders, who raided Hopkinsville, are panic-stricken over the determined stand to bring them to justice. Many under suspicion, have left the country. There is some feeling for a compromise. Others threaten business boycotts and another raid. The lawless element is demanding no more negro laborers be employed on farms in Christian, Trigg and Caldwell counties. Threatening notes are being received by farmers.

1 o'clock. Naturally when Maddox picked up the cracker it began to sputter, and before he could throw it to the ground the cracker exploded and slightly injured his right hand. Scattering particles of powder entered his eyes, but no damage of consequence was done, and today the little fellow is able to be around as usual.

All three of the boys received bad burns about the face and hands, and were given medical assistance at the Union drug store after their supply of fireworks gave out.

A Stray Shot.
While standing near the granary at Eighth and Norton streets early yesterday morning, Will Moore, a negro, claims to have been struck by a stray bullet. The hurt amounted to only a flesh wound in the leg and Moore was able to be downtown this morning.

COALING THE FLEET

Port of Spain, Dec. 26.—Coaling of the Pacific fleet is being rushed today in order that the voyage may be resumed Saturday.

LOVING SUES BEBOUT

H. H. Loving has filed a petition in circuit court, seeking to compel L. L. Bebout to sell him a one-third interest in the insurance business conducted by Mr. Bebout. It is alleged that Loving and Bebout started the business and in January, 1905, Loving disposed of his interest to his partner with the understanding that he could repurchase it at any time he desired and at the same price at which it was sold to Bebout. It is alleged that January, 1906, Loving tendered Bebout the amount agreed upon, but Bebout refused to accept it.

HUNGRY WERE FED, SICK VISITED BY SANTA YESTERDAY

How Hundreds Were Cared For By Systematic Plan and Good Dinners Enjoyed Where Want Haunted the Door of Poverty.

POSTOFFICE IS STILL RUSHED.

Baskets containing dinners for the poor of the city were given away yesterday by Capt. and Mrs. Arthur Meaker, of the Salvation Army. For several days the workers have been rushed and yesterday morning from 8 until 11 o'clock people crowded around headquarters of the army. About 125 baskets were distributed and at the lowest estimate Captain Meaker says they fed 600 people.

For the dinner the army purchased 3 barrels of apples, a barrel and a half of cranberries, 14 barrels of potatoes, 125 pounds of mixed nuts, a keg of sauer kraut, 400 pounds of chicken, and a case of celery. Every family that received a basket had investigated and found deserving. For the sick Capt. and Mrs. Meaker had arranged delicacies, that would make Christmas day a joy to them.

In each basket given out by the army there was a chicken, two loaves of bread, can of corn and tomatoes, pound of mixed nuts, quart of cranberries, peck of potatoes, a dozen apples, sauer kraut, celery, cabbage, and where there were children candy, and fruits were given.

Charity Club Work.
Yesterday was a busy day for Jap Toner, secretary of the Charity club, in supplying Christmas dinners to many of the poor people of the city. Tuesday about 70 baskets were delivered by the women of the club, but yesterday many called at the headquarters for supplies. Additional baskets had been received by the club and the lowest estimates place the number of people fed at between 300 and 400. This Christmas was a success with the club, and more people were fed than in previous years.

Stores' Inventory.
Broadway and the principal retail establishments present their usual post-Christmas appearance today, as there has been but little business aside from the buying of belated and forgotten gifts. There will be no rest for the employees of the stores, however, as all of them will go in immediately for their annual inventories, which, in some stores occupies three weeks.

The holiday trade was surprisingly large with all the big establishments.

Postoffice Rush.
Fifteen letters were received this Christmas at the Paducah postoffice addressed to Santa Claus. These messages, from little boys and girls in the city were not called for by Old Santa, and the postoffice officials, in compliance with the new ruling of the postmaster general, gave them to people, who were charitably inclined. The Charity club, and other such organizations received several. Every letter was placed in good hands, and it is certain that Old Santa Claus did not pass the little boy or girl.

Business was rushing at the postoffice this morning. Many packages were received yesterday and last night, and this morning the carriers had to have assistance in carrying their heavy loads. Yesterday morning the mail was so heavy on the Jefferson street route that three carriers were required to deliver the parcels. Then with the assistance it was impossible for the employees of the postoffice to deliver all the packages to their destinations in the city. Uncle Sam's employees like to enjoy Christmas, too, and only one mail was delivered yesterday.

Kris Kringle has resorted to registered letters this year more than in the past. This morning the clerks found that 250 registered parcels were waiting to be delivered. But all this week the registered letter and money order department of the postoffice has been rushed.

ALDERMEN TONIGHT

Mayor Yeiser called the upper board of the general council in special session tonight to consider the revised license ordinance, and to pass a number of measures the ordinance committee has prepared and is ready to introduce. Councilmen will be assembled probably tomorrow.

Change in Management of Palmer House is Announced Today, and Mr. Schaeffer Resigns Position.

Mr. Stuart Sinnott Will Succeed Him in Charge of the Property—No Sale of Kentucky Theater.

Beginning January 1, the Palmer House will be under the management of Mr. Stuart D. Sinnott, who will succeed Mr. Frank Schaeffer. Mr. Schaeffer came from Chicago eighteen months ago and assumed control of the hotel shortly after Chicago capitalists acquired an interest in it. Mr. Murphy was the first manager, but he soon returned to Chicago, and during the management of Mr. Schaeffer the extensive improvements to the hotel were completed, and it has been made one of the best hotels in the South.

Mr. Stuart D. Sinnott is the youngest son of Mrs. John Sinnott and is a young man of business ability. Mr. Sinnott has been connected with the office of the hotel for some time, and has acquainted himself with the management. Mr. Schaeffer will continue in charge until January 1, and then he will return to Chicago.

Mr. Schaeffer is an excellent hotel manager and has made many friends among local and traveling people.

RUSH SIMMONS' WIFE WASN'T DEAD; RUSH DEAD DRUNK

Rush Simmons, colored, was arrested Wednesday evening on a warrant sworn out by Thomas Barry, of the firm of Barry & Heeneberger, who says that the negro obtained several dollars in money on the false plea that his wife was dead and he needed funds to buy a coffin and pay funeral expenses.

Simmons is a bricklayer and formerly worked for Mr. Barry. Tuesday morning appeared at the office and with tears in his eyes said that his wife was dead and that he was without money. He claimed that although he carried $65 insurance, a colored undertaker had refused to take charge of the body until his bill was secured. Mr. Barry told Simmons to go to Mattil-Effinger & company and tell them that he would stand good for the coffin. Mr. Barry also gave him several dollars in money to pay incidental expenses. Himself that Simmons got the coffin, called at the Mattil & Effinger's and was surprised to learn that Simmons had not shown up. Becoming suspicious, he went to Simmons' home and found his wife alive and well. Further investigation found Simmons dead drunk in a saloon and the arrest followed. Simmons was held to the grand jury in police court this morning.

Mr. J. E. Perryman, of Marion, Ill., is spending the holidays with his father here.

Girls, Here's Your Chance to Wed.

The following letter received by The Sun in this morning's mail speaks in loud, distinct tones for itself:

Derby, Wash. Dec. 20, 1907.
Dear Editor:
I am going to ask a favor of you, and I hope you will grant it. I want to get married, and want an eastern girl, and as I am not acquainted back there, I am going to ask you to help me. I don't want to make a matrimonial bureau of you, but I hope you will do this much for me, that is to put this little piece in your paper. If you will do this I will consider you to be my best friend.

Yours very truly,

AT PORT OF SPAIN FLEET SPENDS ITS CHRISTMAS MONEY

Port of Spain, Dec. 26.—The American torpedo boat flotilla sailed yesterday for Para en route to the Pacific after a delay of twenty-four hours incident to the repair of damages done yesterday when one of the pre pellers of the Whipple fouled the anchor chain of the collier Fortuna. Yesterday was a holiday on all ships of the American battleship fleet. All the big armor clads were dressed and decorated for Christmas day celebrations. The regatta was the big event of the day. Between six and seven thousand American bluejackets were on shore this afternoon. The behavior of the sailors has been excellent.

The holiday spirit prevailed on the American fleet but was more like a celebration of the Fourth of July than that of the Christmas men had known in colder climes. Decorations there were in plenty and wreaths of holly and evergreens swinging that had been brought along to keep alive remembrances of the day. There were special dinners in the messrooms for the officers and turkey and other good things for the men. It was not given to the men of the torpedo boat flotilla to spend Christmas ashore, for early in the morning with flags flying and firing a salute to Admiral Evans' flag floating off the main truck of the battleship Connecticut, they steamed away to Para, five days' journey. Yesterday not less than six or seven thousand bluejackets were allowed on shore and they entered into the spirit of merry making with the towns people whose geniality and hospitality have known no bounds. The feature of the festivities was the regatta in which many of the battleships had crews. Admiral Evans with his staff watched the struggles of the competitors from his launch.

BEAUTIFUL PRESENT

The employees of Friedman, Keller & Co., gave Mr. Joseph Friedman and Mr. John Keller each for a Christmas present a statue of Venus and Milo, handsomely carved from genuine Carafa marble, imported from Italy. They are about five and one-half feet in height.

I am tall 6 feet high, weigh 175 pounds, dark brown hair and eyes, and dress well, and go in good society, and have a good income; one that any reasonable woman could live on. Now girls let me hear from some of you, or all of you. No objections to widows, if good looking. Address, O. B. KING, Derby, Wash.

NO FIRES YESTERDAY

BOMBARDED TRAIN.

Annual Rough Time Takes Place on Train From Paducah.

Mayfield, Ky., Dec. 26.—Monday night there was some rough times on the accommodation train coming from Paducah. Window lights were broken out and rocks hurled through the doors and windows.

Z. T. Long, of this city, was on the train and narrowly missed serious injury. One of the window panes was shattered at his seat and fragments of glass fell in his face and in fact almost covered him. It was at Florence Station in McCracken county that most of the damage was done. A crowd of drunken hoodlums got off there and then proceeded to bombard the train in a cowardly style. Several people were slightly injured by flying missiles and broken glass.

MARVIN HART

WILL RE-ENTER PRIZE RING AGAINST TOMMY BURNS.

Louisville Heavy Weight Will Go to Hot Springs and Train For Championship.

Louisville, Dec. 26.—Marvin Hart, having practically disposed of his business establishment, has arranged to go to Hot Springs to begin training, and by February 15 he expects to be ready to box any heavyweight, bar none. He prefers Tommy Burns, who is now reaping a golden harvest in London by reason of having defeated Gunner Moir. It was Burns' defeat of Hart, while the Louisville man was not at his best, that set Burns high on the pugilistic ladder. Hart is making no excuses for Burns' battle, for he was on his feet at the end and says a draw should have been the referee's verdict. Hart wants to show that when he is fit he can beat Burns. This is his ambition, and he will be ready next time to make good if the French-Canadian will only meet him half way.

In Hart's last fight, and for which he got ready in eleven days, in which he broke his hand in the sixth round by hitting Mike Schreck on the elbow, he gave a wonderful exhibition. The battle went twenty-one rounds, and at the finish most of the crowd yelled to the referee to give Hart the fight on account of his gameness. The punishment he administered to Schreck was terrific. In proof of this Schreck has since easily been defeated by Al Kaufmann. It is a repetition of the fate of many of Hart's foes—he hammers all the fight out of them.

Hart now has offers to box in Chelsea, Mass., Philadelphia and other cities. When he gets good and fit he will take on all of the big fellows one after the other. Hart's hand has gotten strong. He is sure of regaining his laurels.

ENTOMBED MINER

SENDS LETTER TO FRIEND EXPRESSING HIS HOPE.

Five Hundred Feet of Earth Blocks Passage Way but He Has Food Enough.

Victor, Col., Dec. 26.—Entombed 1,000 feet below the earth's surface since December 4, A. D. Bailey, a miner of Ely, Nev., has written to a friend here telling of his perilous position, but expressing his hope of being rescued within the next two weeks.

Bailey, with two companions, was caught in the cavern of the Alpha shaft, and 500 feet of solid rock dropped into the passage above them cutting off all communication with the outer world. By a lucky accident, however, the niche in which they were working was not filled by the falling debris.

The imprisoned miners had oil enough in their lamps to allow them to explore their tomb, and in their search for a way out they stumbled upon a six inch water pipe, which extended down the shaft and which escaped destruction in the accident.

Even Have a Telephone.

Through this the prisoners established communication with their rescuers and soon drinking water and rations were sent down. Then, not satisfied with this crude means of talking with the outside world, they connected their telephone with a wire running up the water column.

Although in no need of the necessities of life, the prisoners are still in grave danger, as the ground is still settling, and from time to time it will be necessary to fill in the space with cordwood to prevent another cave-in. Owing to the frequent runs of earth during the last three days it will probably be two weeks before they are rescued.

The rescuers themselves face grave perils in the liability that the piled muck and timbers on which they are working will give way, dropping them to the bottom of the shaft. To prevent this each man works with a rope tied around his body and secured from above.

Hard Day for the Goose.

One of the Thanksgiving prizes of a church society here was a great goose, pure white, with a voice like a comanche. The bird was won by a Watertown girl and left for delivery to her yesterday at an express office. The goose was neglected in the rush of business and was sent home at dusk. On the way it fell off, escaped and was struck by an automobile. The fowl landed on the chest of Mrs. C. L. Tangery, of Huntington, L. I., rendering her insensible from fright and shock. Escaping and with a broken leg, the goose took wing. In its excitement it flew into a dining room where four persons were eating supper, taking the whole sash with it. Mrs. C. F. Wheaton, an inmate, is in a serious condition from the shock of the fowl's flight.—Waterbury (Conn.) Dispatch in New York World.

It does no harm to remember that there is as much room for improvement in yourself as in your neighbor.

THEATRICAL NOTES

Paul Gilmore Saturday.

Concerning the engagement of Paul Gilmore, who appears at the Kentucky Saturday night, the Knoxville Sentinel says:

"A clever comedy drama of combined Texas ranch life and New York society, with a story of love at first sight, a hunt for fortune and the avenging of a wrong done one man by another by the wronged man's son is 'The Wheel of Love,' presented at Staub's theatre Tuesday night by Paul Gilmore and a capable supporting company. Mr. Gilmore has surrounded himself this season with an evenly balanced corps of players, all of whom deserve merited praise for portrayal of their respective parts. Best of all, however, are Phyllis Young, as 'Eleanor Grayson,' a New York society girl and adopted daughter of 'Samuel Grayson,' the villain of the cast. She falls in love with 'Jack Hartley,' the character taken by Mr. Gilmore. Willard Louis, as 'Horace Sinclair,' better known as 'Griz,' a Texas cow puncher, leads in the male support.

"Those who have seen Mr. Gilmore in past seasons in 'The Mummy and the Humming Bird' and 'At Yale' were not disappointed in his offering for this season. Those who had not seen him before were pleased with his work.

"At the conclusion of the second act, there was spontaneous applause that called Mr. Gilmore to the foot-light several times, and the audience would not cease until he responded with a little curtain talk. All formalities were laid aside and Mr. Gilmore made a heart to heart talk to his auditors, expressing his sincere appreciation of the ovation. During this demonstration, a large bouquet of chrysanthemums was sent to the stage by an admiring friend and this token was happily acknowledged."

Found Bees in the Stovepipe.
Incensed that their nest in a stovepipe was disturbed by a fire, a swarm of bees yesterday afternoon attacked Jacob Parker, an octogenarian, and his son, Charles, twenty-three years old, stinging each scores of times. In an almost hysterical state the two walked to the residence of Dr. J. W. Pinero, where they were treated. It will be several days, it is said, before the two will be recognizable on account of the swelling of their features.

The father had started a fire in a stove at Necotown lane, east of Old York road. The smoke refused to go up the chimney. The son was called

He reached his right arm into the stovepipe and the bees came out to greet him.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Well, what are you doing there?" asked the lady, addressing a tramp who had just climbed a tree in time to escape a savage bulldog.

When the New Year Begins.

One of the queerest features of the first day of the year is the fact that it has been celebrated on many different dates. With us the year begins on January 1, according to the calendar prepared by order of Julius Caesar, and later revised from time to time as necessity seemed to require. Hardly a month in the year but what has been regarded at some time, by some people, as the first of the 12, and consequently the beginning of the new year. Sometimes the date was logical, determined by the position of the sun in the heavens.

Sometimes it was fixed by agricultural or industrial conditions, sometimes by a great historical event, and occasionally it was merely arbitrary, determined without any special reason being assigned. At one time the Greeks began their year September 1 at another on the first day of July, the beginning of the Olympian games. In what is called the Alexandrian era the year began on August 20. One Jewish chronology assigns October 1 as the date on which the creation of the world began, and consequently adopts that New Year's day. At one time the Romans began their year on April 24, at another on March 1, and finally as we do now.

According to the meteoric cycle, the year began on July 15. During the period of Alexander's empire the commencement of the year was on September 1; the era of the Macabees was dated from November 24. The people of Tyre began their year on October 19, while the so-called Sidonian era commenced on October 1, and the Augustan era made February 14 the first day of the new year. The ancient Egyptians began their year with the overflow of the Nile; whenever that might occur, while in India the annual flood of the Ganges furnished a date for popular chronology, and the Mexicans, although they had a complicated system of calculating time, popularly reckoned their year to begin with the spring planting.

The Jewish rabbis had four beginnings of the year, the first of the month Nisan, supposed to be the date of the Exodus; the first of Tishri, which began the agricultural year; the first of Elul, the day on which the cattle were numbered, and the first of Shebat, which was called the new year for trees. Christmas day, Easter, the beginning of each solstice and many other dates have been observed at different times by various nations; even now in Russia the day of the new year is 12 days behind that of our calendar, the Russians having never adopted the Gregorian calendar, which, indeed, did not come into general use until about the middle of the eighteenth century.

Two cars of a passenger train were blown from the track near Boulder, Col. Six persons were seriously injured and a number of others were slightly hurt.

John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America, is still unable to leave his room at Indianapolis, but his condition is reported as improving.

Nine witnesses, including Jim Howard and W. J. Davidson, testified in the Powers trial. The defense is expected to rest, and but few witnesses will be examined by rebuttal.

Gen. Skallen, governor general of Warsaw, who recently closed 1,600 Polish schools and disbanded a number of labor unions, has ordered all the Jewish clubs in Poland to close.

Five men, alleged to have robbed the bank at Aldrich, Mo., December 12, were arrested at Cairo, Ill., and placed in the county jail. They had considerable money in their possession when arrested.

John B. Atholison issued a statement saying that the strike order of the United Mine Workers of America will have no effect on the coal mines of Hopkins, Christian and Webster counties, as only 5 per cent. of the coal produced in those counties is gotten out by union miners.

"The Commission of Seventeen," which has had under advisement the annexation treaty between Belgium and the Congo independent states, has decided to refer back to the government the question of the crown domain and other important matters, in the agreement for fuller explanation.

The people of the cotton mill district of Union Springs, Ala., indignantly refused to accept Christmas charity. A number of baskets were posted about the town in which the people were to drop presents for the "poor people of the cotton mill district." In a short time notices were posted that "the poor people of the cotton mill district" neither needed nor desired such aid.

As a result of the recent reorganization of the Pere Marquette railroad company it was announced that the office force of the road will be moved from Cincinnati to Detroit. Two hundred men will be affected, and President William Cotter, of the Pere Marquette, says that he wishes to make the transfer by January 1. All of the central offices of the company will be located in Detroit.

According to the statistics compiled by the Railway Age, railroad construction in the United States has been nearly as heavy in 1907 as in 1906, which was the heaviest year since 1888. The total number of miles of new track laid this year has been 5,730, of which 422 miles were in Louisiana, 341 in Florida, 385 in South Dakota, 314 in Texas, and 311 in Washington. In Canada during the same time 723 miles were built and 349 in Mexico. The greater part of the new track was laid before the financial stringency, only a small amount of mileage being constructed after September.

Some Christmas Fireworks.
Chinamen employed at Lee Pang's laundry 125 South Third street, entertained a number of American youths yesterday morning, with a display of fireworks, which were imported from their native country. A number of double shooting bombs were touched off, the bomb exploding once on the ground and then rising high into the air and exploding again, making a loud report. The Chinamen entered into the spirit of the occasion with as much enthusiasm as the American youths, who enjoyed, not only the quaint looking fireworks, but the Chinamen's antics when the fireworks would explode.

Detective's Narrow Escape.
Detective Will Baker narrowly escaped serious injury Tuesday night by the explosion of a cartridge in the chamber of his pistol, which he used to club Henry Buckner, a prisoner, into submission. Buckner and Will Dickson were detected stealing toys at Karby's and when arrested by the detective, Buckner became abusive and attempted to jerk away from him and run. The ball from the cartridge grazed the detective's hand.

"Some people," remarked the demoralizer, "never seem to be around when wanted."

"Well," rejoined the moralizer, "it is better to be absent when wanted than to be present when you are not wanted."

Noticed the Omission.

Some dramatic authors seem to regard construction as unnecessary frills. On the first night of the only drama that the novelist, Miss Braden, wrote, a scene was introduced in which a child was kidnapped from its mother. At the end, when all were made happy, so much had been left to the general imagination that no pains had been taken to effect the restoration of the stolen child. Of course it was an unworkmanlike lapse on the part of the dramatist, and it seemed to have passed unnoticed until a god leaned over the gallery rail and solemnly inquired: "Hi! What about that kid?" The piece was swamped in a flood of inextinguishable laughter.

"I'm tired of being penned up in this prairie dog hole," said the young specimen of the Crotalus horridus. "Can't I go out and play?"
"No, you can't," responded the mother snake. "You stay right here and play with your rattle."

Bad Liver.

The only salvation for the person with a torpid liver is through a changed system of dietetics, combined with exercises in the outdoor air, calisthenics and deep breathing. The person with a bad liver should habitually practice deep and long breathing, filling the lungs at each inhalation.

The curative dietary must consist principally of nerve or brain food, including fish and a reasonable amount of beef, with generous quantities of cereal foods and the fruits that are rich in action. In warm weather it is best to abstain from milk altogether. Butter and vegetable fats, olive oil, boiled rice, baked apples, baked potatoes, graham or whole-wheat bread, soft-boiled eggs, all constitute a safe and nourishing diet for the bilious person. At the first symptom of biliousness squeeze the juice of half a lemon in the water you drink just before breakfast and before going to bed at night.—What to Eat.

Your competitor's bigger show windows, better location, bigger signs, bigger wall and roster ads, need not worry you. But if he begins to use bigger newspaper space than you do, then begin to worry.

Isn't it a shame that the highest praise a man ever gets comes out at his funeral?

Daily Thought.

If thou faint in the day of adversity
thy strength is small.—Old Testament.

Oh, well, you can send a New Year's greeting, you know.

Georgia watermelons are famous.
Some folks would have us believe Georgia is just about to cultivate an equally famous water-lemon.

A Pittsburg young man has started on a walk from New York to Chicago in the hope of curing himself of the drink habit. The fact that he is making the trip without a cent in the holiday season, arouses the suspicion that he intends to test the hospitality of the saloons of the United States, after the fashion of the young lady, who has been writing up our churches for the edification of the readers of a popular magazine.

CANNED VOICES.

Paris opera house managers have taken records containing the voices of noted singers and stored them away in air tight, light proof wrappings, in subterranean chambers, beneath the home of opera, whence they will be taken 100 years from now to give the people of that time an idea of the singing of today, and of the development of mechanics, of which we are so proud.

Alas, and alack! We shall, we fear, be studied like the half-developed man of the stone age. The great pyramids of Egypt and other achievements of an age gone by, challenge our admiration and wonder, and perhaps, if they had laid away for our inspection the rude tools they used then, the exhibits would only have intensified our wonder at their accomplishments with the poor equipment, while multiplying our own self-satisfaction at the advancement of our own age. Will not this exhibit of our phonograph give the same impression?

Who can imagine the wonders that will be common place an hundred years hence? Think of the devilish ingenuity that will be expended in developing the instruments for inflicting physical and mental torture on the public, in the effort to induce it to visit the moving picture show, or whatever nickel deceiving device will be its successor.

Let us hope, the people, who come after us, will recognize the mechanical deficiencies, or, shall we say,
the lack of technique—lack of tone appreciation in the modern phonograph.
What if music masters of 2097 should gravely assemble around the little machine and marvel how such strange sounds and bubbles could come from a human throat! What if some cult should imagine they discovered in the box and cylinder a lost art, and undertake a revival of a style of music, that would start something after this wise:

Sneeze-z-z-z-z-ugh-wow. wow. Scream-Caruso! The Grand Opera. Columbia Record! Chee-on-chee-ow -squeak-garugh!

Enforcement of the law will be the keynote of Mayor-elect Smith's administration, if we are to judge by evidences already accumulating. By a simple device in the license ordinance he proposes to avoid the necessity of engaging in a prolonged litigation with every saloonkeeper, whose license he revokes for violating the law. He would have them sign a contract agreeing to it. Self-interest is still the strongest influence in life, and when the mayor makes it to the interest of saloon-keepers to obey the law, and greatly hazardous to their interest to break it, he is going a long way toward inducing them to behave voluntarily.

A TRUE STORY.

Once upon a time, a number of reporters were sent to keep the death watch with a condemned man.
They were personally curious about the feeling and conduct of a human being, who was condemned to die.
The idea of anyone being compelled to die was novel enough to arouse their interest. They plied the man with pertinent and impertinent questions, which he answered imperturb-ably. They went away to return next day to commune further with him, and they were wonder stricken at the calmness of a man, who had to die. On their way the next day, one of their number was struck by a wagon and killed. The others visited the condemned man, who inquired solitiously after the absent one.
He was told of the young man's untimely death. The condemned man smiled a smile of pity, and said:
"Poor fellows, there isn't much difference after all. The only advantage I have over you, is that I know the time limit within which I must die, and am prepared, and protected against harm meanwhile; but you don't know when your sentence is to be executed."

What do we care what any critic says about our navy? If any part of what that obscure British magazine writer said about our battleships is correct, we are much obliged for the information, and shall proceed to overcome the defect. If any of our executive officers are ignorant and inefficient, they probably will sink their ships and go down with them, and it is probably worth the price of a ship to get rid of such officers. Those who survive the trip around the Horn are pretty apt to be proficient by the time they get back.
We sent them on the voyage to improve the navy. We think it is the best navy in the world. We know it will be the best after the long cruise. So will Japan. It will get bigger, too.

Russia has discovered the means of rescuing politics from commercialism. Members of her legislative assembly do not have "feathers in their nests" while in office. When a people is elected to the Duma he is responsibly sure of finding a life position in the government service in Siberia.

LAWYER TRIES TO DOWN ORDINANCE

Efforts will be made in the trial of the city against El Guthrie & company for the violation of the ordinance regulating the placing of signs over public highways, to have the ordinance declared unconstitutional.
During the holidays the firm stretched a cloth sign on the awning over the sidewalk in front of the store, 322-324 Broadway. An ordinance passed in the summer by the general council transfers the power of regulating the placing of signs to the board of public works. Before the sign is placed in position a design must be given the board and permission granted.

In police court this morning Guthrie & company was represented by the Hon. Charles K. Wheeler, and in a brief statement to the court, he mentioned several apparent flaws in the ordinance. The title of the ordinance repeals a previous ordinance and creates a new ordinance with penalties for the violation of it, and the power of regulating the sign is delegated from the general council to an inferior body.

Another point of contention will be the question of the cloth. Reasoning that the scope of the police powers is to protect the citizens and property from injury, the question arises whether the cloth sign comes within that scope.

In order that the attorneys may review authorities, Judge Cross continued the case until next Monday morning.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

The Chase in the Storm.

When we reached the entrance to our quarters on Montgomery street
the rain had once more begun to fall, gently now, but the gusts of damp wind from the south promised more and worse to follow.
"A message for you, Mr. Wilton," said a voice suddenly from the recess of the doorway.
"Give it to me," I said.

A slip of paper was thrust into my hand, and I passed up the stairs.
"I'll wait for you," said the messenger, and at the first gas jet that burned at the head of the stairs I stopped to read the address.

It was in the hand of the Unknown, and my fatigue and indifference were gone in a moment. I trembled as I tore open the envelope and read:
"Follow the bearer of this note at 12:30. Come alone and armed. It is important."
There was no signature.

If it meant anything it meant that I was to meet the Unknown, and perhaps to search the heart of the mystery. I had been heavy with fatigue and drowsy with want of sleep, but at this thought the energies of life were once more fresh within me.
The men had waited a minute for me as I read the note.

"Go to your rooms and get some rest," I said. "I am called away. Trent will be in charge, and I will send word to him if I need any of you."
They looked at me in blank protest.
"You're not going alone, sir?" cried
Owens in a tone of alarm.

"Oh, no. But I shall not need a guard." I hoped heartily that I did not.

The men shook their heads doubt-
fully, and I continued:
"Corson will be down from the Central station in 15 or 20 minutes. Just tell him I've been sent for and to come to-morrow if he can make it in his way."

And bidding them good night I ran hastily down the stairs before any of the men could frame his protest into words.

"Are you ready, sir?" asked the messenger.
"It is close on half-past twelve," I answered. "Where is she?"
"It's not far away," said my guide
evasively.

I understood the danger of speech and did not press for an answer.
We plunged down Montgomery street in the teeth of the wind that dashed the spray in our faces at one moment, lulled an instant the better to deceive the unwary and then leaped at us from behind corners with the impetuous rush of some great animal that turned to vapor as it reached us.

The street was dark except for the newspaper offices, which glowed bright with lights on both sides of the way, busy with the only signs of life that the storm and the midnight hour had left.

With the lighted buildings behind us we turned down California street.
Halfway down the block, in front of the Merchants' Exchange, stood a hack. At the sight my heart beat fast and my breath came quick.

As we neared the hack my guide gave a short, suppressed whistle, and passing before me, flung open the door to the vehicle and motioned me to enter. I had gone too far to retreat, and stepped into the hack. Instantly the door closed behind me.

"Where did you get this?" exclaimed Mrs. Knapp.

I described the circumstances in as
few words as I could command.

"They are ahead of us," she said
in alarm.

"They have started first, I suppose,"
was my suggestion.

And they have the right road.

"Then our only hope is that they may not know the right place."

"God grant it," said Mrs. Knapp.

AGED SENATOR PATTERSON

BEATEN BY RIVAL EDITOR.

Denver, Dec. 26.—Senator T. M.
Patterson today suffered a severe beating at the hands of F. W. Bonfils, proprietor of the Denver Post. The attack was the sequel to a bitter newspaper fight. It came as Senator Patterson was leaving home to go to his office. He was knocked down and kicked several times. His advanced age, he is 70, makes his family fearful of the results. Bonfils is Cars Blown From the Track.

Denver, Col., Dec. 26.—The baggage car and first passenger coach of a north bound Colorado and Southern train were blown from the track and overturned in the ditch at noon today. The accident occurred ten miles south of Boulder. Six persons were seriously injured. A sixty mile gale has been blowing over northern Colorado today.

stead of following, the guide closed the door gently; I heard him mount the seat with the driver, and in a moment we were in motion.

Was I alone? I had expected to find the Unknown, but the dark interior gave no sign of a companion. A slight movement made me certain that some one sat in the father corner of the carriage. The situation became a little embarrassing. Was it my place to speak first? I wondered. At last I could endure the silence no longer.

"Quite an unpleasant evening," I remarked politely.

There was a rustle of movement,
the sound of a short gasp, and a soft,
mournful voice broke on my ear.

"Mr. Dudley—can you forgive me?"

The astonishment I felt to hear my own name once more—the name that seemed now to belong to a former state of existence—was swallowed up as the magnetic tones carried their revelation to my mind. I was stricken dumb for a moment at the discovery
they had brought. Then I gasped:

"Mrs. Knapp!"

"Yes, Mrs. Knapp," she said with a mournful laugh. "Did you never suspect?"

I was lost in wonder and confusion,
and even yet could not understand.

"What brings you out in this storm?" I asked, completely mystified.

"I thought I was to meet another person."

"Indeed?" said Mrs. Knapp, with a spark of animation. "Well, I am the other person."

"You?" I exclaimed at last. "Are you the protector of the boy?"

The employer—Then I stopped; the tangle in mind beginning to straighten out.

"I am she," said Mrs. Knapp gently.

"Then," I cried, "who is he? what is he? what is the whole dreadful affair about?"

Mrs. Knapp interrupted me.

"First tell me what has become of Henry Wilton?" she said with sorrow in her voice.

The dreadful scene in the alley
flashed before my mind.

"He is dead."

"Dead! And how?"

"Murdered."

"I feared so—I was certain, or he would have let me know. You have much to tell me. But first, did he leave no papers in your hands?"

I brought out the slip that bore the blind diagram and the blinder description that accompanied it. Nothing could be made of it in the darkness, so I described it as well as I could.

"We are on the right track," said Mrs. Knapp. "Oh, why didn't I have that yesterday? But here—we are at the wharf."

My guide was before us, and we followed him down the pier, struggling against the gusts.

"Do we cross the bay?" I asked, as Mrs. Knapp clung to my arm. "It's not safe for you in a small boat."

"There's a tug waiting for us," Mrs.
Knapp explained.

A moment later we saw its lights,
and the fire of its engine room shot a cheerful glow into the storm. The little vessel swung unsteadily at its berth as we made our way aboard, and with shouts of men and clang of bells it was soon tossing on the dark waters of the bay.

The cabin of the tug was fitted with a shelf-table, and over it swung a lamp of brass that gave a dim light to the little room. Mrs. Knapp seated herself here, spread out the paper I had given her and studied the diagram and the jumble of letters with anxious attention.

"It is the same," she said at last;
"in part, at least."

"The same as what?" I asked.

"As the one I got word of to-night,
you know," she replied.

"But," she continued, "this gives a different place. I was to go to the cross-road here"—indicating the mark at the last branch.

"I'm glad to hear that," said I, taking out the diagram I had found in the citadel of the enemy. "This seems to point to a different place, too, and I really hope that the gentleman who drew this map is a good way off from the truth."

"Where did you get this?" exclaimed Mrs. Knapp.

I described the circumstances in as
few words as I could command.

"They are ahead of us," she said
in alarm.

"They have started first, I suppose,"
was my suggestion.

And they have the right road.

"Then our only hope is that they
may not know the right place."

"God grant it," said Mrs. Knapp.

The Body Merely Machine.

There are just any number of diseases in which the Osteopathic is the only treatment that will give any relief at all.

The various phases of neuralgia and rheumatism as an example yield more readily to the Osteopathic treatment than they do to medicine.
So too do lumbago, chronic headaches, partial paralysis and kindred ailments, and to one who knows the first principles of Osteopathy it is easily to see why this is so.

Osteopathy is a scientific system of exercise for the nerves and organs of the body—simply manipulation by which it restores structural normality. The body is a machine ran by unseen forces called life, and that it may run harmoniously it is necessary that there be liberty of blood, nerves and arteries from the generating point to destination. This is what osteopathy does—gives

LIBRARY PLANS

Considerable business may come up before the board of trustees of the public library at their meeting early in January. The trustees have nothing to give out at present. Plans will be discussed to extend the usefulness of the library by sending books to the public schools. At present the books of the library are too limited to include all the schools, and the High school probably will be the school that will receive books next year. But as the library grows, the improvement in service to the school children will be made.

In Circuit Court.

Petition was filed in circuit court by Mrs. E. E. Bradberry against the Illinois Central railroad company for $2,000 damages, alleging that the railroad company failed to keep its agreement and allow her to leave a train at Gilbertsville. The plaintiff's ticket read from Louisville to Paducah, but it is claimed that when the ticket was bought it was agreed that she could stop at Gilbertsville.

James A. Herring, a real estate agent, filed suit against Annie L. James alleging that the defendant had refused to pay him commission amounting to $100 for selling a house and lot belonging to her.

Mr. Herring also filed a suit against T. C. Leach for $150, claiming due for selling three pieces of property at $50 each.

Andrew Tubbs through his next friend F. G. Rudolph, filed suit against the Paducah Coalage company for $2,000 damages. Tubbs' arm was broken while wheeling material up a gang plank into a railroad car. It is alleged that the plank broke and he fell to the ground, sustaining a broken arm.

"I never saw a quieter Christmas and Christmas eve," said Chief Collins this morning. "Part of it was due to the anti-joy pistol ordinance. It did good, and was well enforced. There were no violations until Christmas eve and then they were limited. Of course, we can't have a perfect town. There were no accidents of consequence, and few fights."

GEO. ADE'S FABLES

The Fearsome Feud Between the First Families.

[Copyright, 1902, 1903, by Robert Howard Russell.]

Once there grew up alongside of a Railroad Track an overgrown Village that refused to be called a Town, so it was known as a City. It had a Water Tower, a Court House, a Police Station, a Steam Laundry. On the Main Street was a Business College where the Yokels learned in nine weeks how to be Merchant Princes. Also a Trolley Line that ran as far out as the Cemetery and then threw up both Hands. The Particular Pride of the Place was a $250 Hotel with a Tiled Floor and a Ladies' Parlor so Magnificent that no one had been known to use it.

All the Residents of this Progressive Community took their Cues from two Families that controlled more or less Bank Stock and had Poinsettias playing in the Front Yard, to say nothing of Senegambians to look after the Horses. These two Tribes, the Winkles and the Skilligans, were the real three-X Gonzabans.

One of the many Diversions planned by the high-collared Residents, so that they might temporarily forget where they were living, was Amateur Theatre.

Two or three times every Season the Club gave a Show at the local Temple of Art. After all Expenses had been paid, the Net Proceeds, which sometimes ran as high as $18, went to Charity. This was another Case in which Charity covered a Multitude of Sins.

At one of these Dramatic Treats it was decided to put on the Balcony Scene from "Romeo and Juliet." Wm. Shakespeare was in no Position to get out an Injunction, and the Club had such a Social Drag that no one dared to set fire to the Opera-House in order to head off the Massacre.

It was unanimously agreed that Mr. Philo Quackenbush was the Boy to do Romeo. He was Golf Champion, having done 9 Holes in 58 on a Course which made it necessary to Putt with a Lifter. Besides, he had led the German every Year for 18 years and had Relatives in New York City.

But when it came to the selection of Juliet, there were two Candidates, as follows: Mrs. Skilligan and Mrs. Winkle. Each of these estimable Ladies had a kind of inward Hunch that she could revive Memories of Mary Anderson and leave Maude Adams some-where.

back of the Flag. Mrs. Skilligan was tall, fibrous, and weighed 108 when in Condition. She had a Daughter who was a Sophomore, and that was why some of her Enemies said that she was too far along to look the Part of Juliet. Just the same, Mrs. Skilligan wanted a Whack at it, for what she lacked in Looks and Youthfulness, she could make up in Jewelry. So she began to lay her Pipes and do some tall Scheming.

In the mean time, Mrs. Winkle was studying the Lines and checking off the Names of all Members who would not dare to throw her down. Mrs. Winkle could see herself on the Balcony giving an entirely new Interpretation of the Part. She had discovered certain Hidden Meanings in the Lines, and she wanted to hand out the Immortal Hot Stuff in such a Way that Folks would forget all about Julia Marlowe and those other ordinary Actresses who were after the Coin, regardless of Art.

The Stage-Manager employed by the bold Amateurs was an Ex-Legit who had lost his Voice asking for Salary. He picked up Courage and ventured to ask Mrs. Winkle if she didn't think she was a little too strong on the Measurements to be the girlish Capulet.

"Oh, Pickles!" quoth Mrs. Winkle. "I'm just about the size of May Irwin, and she's a lovely Actress. Besides, I'll wear something Loose, so that they can't see my Real Shape."

The Stage-Manager said no more, for he needed the Money.

The Club had a Meeting and the Lady who carried Weight for Age beat out the Anti-Fat Candidate. Mrs. Winkle was elected the Ideal Juliet by a Majority of One, and some were mean enough to say that she voted for herself. As for Mamma Skilligan, she was not Put Out a Particle. Not on your Facial Expression! A good many Competent Judges had told her that Shakespeare must have had her in mind when he wrote the Part, but if the Club preferred a large, coarse Creature to tackle that beautiful Stuff, let it go at that!

Just to prove that she wasn't Miffed she bought all of the lower Boxes, and on the Night of the Performance she gave a Dinner-Party at which the Gentlemen proceeded to tea up and roast the Large Party, in spite of anything she could say to choke them off. Along about 9 o'clock she said it was time to go down and watch the Balloon go up. The Push landed in at the Opera-House just in time to break up the Scene in which the Child Sweetheart sighs and wonders where Romeo is. The whole Outfit came into the Boxes and upset Chairs and begged everybody else to take the front Seats and called for Programmes. By the time they settled down and got ready to kid the Performance, the large White Mass up on the Shelf didn't know whether she was playing Juliet or Bridge Whist. She got twisted on her Lines, so that Romeo, with the Red Mustaches, skipped a couple of speeches. Then the Mass shifted a few Feet and the Balcony squeaked and promised to give way, and some one in the Skilligan Party made a low Crack that started a Giggle. Juliet lasted, but she was too Pink for Words.

Then Mrs. Skilligan said she was sorry for the Poor Thing, for it really wasn't her Fault, as she had been bunked into thinking she was Good.

Juliet had 8 Curtain Calls, or two more than Melba's Record, and before the Night was over she received so many Flowers and was complimented so often by those who came up to her little Supper-Party that she had a good Notion to leave Winkle and go and work for Charley Frohman. In fact, at 3 a. m. she was ready to make Affidavit that she had Virginia Harnead, Maxine Elliott, and Mary Manning completely thrown back into the Chorus.

Next day the Paper

ROMEIO SKIPPED A COUPLE OF SPEECHES.

said that she was Great, and she took 200 Extra Copies and read them all herself and then sent a few to the Skilligans.

About a month after that Mrs. Skilligan gave a Fancy-Dress Ball, with Costumes all the Way from St. Louis, and three kinds of Punch on the Dining-Room Table. Lady Skilligan did Queen Elizabeth, with $80,000 worth of Rock Crystals hanging to her. Mrs. Winkle came, for fear People might think she cherished some Animosity against her crushed and fallen Rival, and when she stood up against the Hostess she fell backward and took the Count, for she was only a Dresden Shepherdess.

She went home and began to whet her Axe, and the first Thing any one knew she had the U. S. Senator right up at her House and a few Friends in to see him Eat and no Skilligans in the List.

Then the Carpenters at Work enlarging the Skilligan House and a Grand Reception with Imported Music and no Winkles there to hear it.

After which a quiet Evening at the Winkles and the Souvenirs costing $18 per. In due Time a private Vaudeville at the Skilligans and Expense cutting no Figure, the same as at Newport.

Then two Men meeting at the Court-House, where the Bankruptcy Papers are filed up. They silently shook Hands, and then Skilligan said to Winkle, "It's a Dead Heat."

MORAL: The Men are always the first to Quit.

WINS SUIT AGAINST ROADS.

Illinois Central and Southern Lose Before Commerce Commission.

Washington, Dec. 26.—The case of the Holcombe-Hayes company against the Illinois Central railroad company and the Southern railroad company, before the Interstate Commerce Commission, has been decided in favor of the complainant. The defendant roads are required to publish their rates for a definite period of time and to reimburse the complainant in the sum of $3,071 as representing alleged unjust and unreasonable charges for the transportation of cross-ties.

Although just announced today, the decision was rendered December 9, and embodies a new rule in such cases to prevent discrimination requiring rates to remain in effect for a definite period of time to be designed.

SOFTNESS OF SEAL SKIN.

Is Rivalled by Human Hair Where Dandruff is Eradicated.

Seal skin is admired the world over for its softness and glossiness; and yet the human hair is equally as soft and glossy when healthy; and the radical cause of all hair trouble is dandruff, which is caused by a pestiferous parasite that saps the vitality of the hair at its root. Newbro's Herpicide is the only preparation that is fatal to this dandruff germ. Without dandruff there is no falling hair, but a luxuriant growth of glossy, soft hair is certain. Scouring the scalp won't cure dandruff. Kill the dandruff germ. Thousands of women owe their beautiful suits of hair to Newbro's Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Two sizes, 50c and $1.00. Send 10c in stamps to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. W. B. McPherson, Special Agent.

in the order. The following comment is made:

"The commission does not approve the practice whereby a carrier puts in rates with a clause under which they expire after a short time, for the purpose of enabling the commission to do justice in a particular case."

In the present case the defendants are required to publish and charge, on or before January 15, 1908, and during a period of at least one year thereafter, a rate of 19 1/2 cents per cross-tie.

The Grand Canyon. "By all odds the most beautiful scene on the North American Continent is the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, in Arizona," said Tobias J. Lindley, a physician of Phoenix, Ariz., at the Ebbitt House last night. Dr. Lindley has been abroad and is on his way home.

"So fascinating has this scene been to me," he continued, "that during the past few years I have often spent several days, and even weeks, there. Travelers take the main line of the Santa Fe and change to a little line that runs to Williams, Ariz., where there is a fairly good hotel. Those desiring to go into the canyon usually join a mule party and spend about three days there, carrying provisions with them."

"I have no words, and I do not believe any man has, to describe the sublimity of the spectacle that meets the eye when one first gazes upon the canyon. There is a little ridge with a path leading up to it, along which travelers go when they first gaze upon this sight. Oftentimes excursion parties go there and it is interesting to note how the picture affects each one of the party as he reaches the top of that ridge. With most of them there is a prolonged exclamation of 'Ah-h-h!' and then, when they all get there and drink in the scene, the silence for a moment is profound. I have seen some of them actually cry. It is like looking into some promised land of exquisite beauty and grandeur. All the colors of the rainbow are to be found there, but perhaps what impresses one most is the realization that it was formed in the morning of time, long before man ever appeared upon the earth; that it was once a part of the bed of a vast ocean, and that it later became the bed of a mighty stream. High above, the bottom are immense pot holes, where the waters washed ages ago. And the vision is so far-reaching, extending, perhaps a hundred miles, though it does not seem that far, that a man can not but realize how infinitely small he is and of how little consequence he is in nature and in time. I never talked with a man who had seen the canyon but who admitted that he had been made a better man through doing so."—Washington Post.

Prescribing For the Chinese Emperor. Chen Lien-fong and Ts'ao Ts'ang-tson, the two well-known Chinese physicians of this province, recommended by Viceroy Tuan Fang to prescribe for His Imperial Majesty the Emperor, were introduced in audience to His Majesty on Thursday morning. The Emperor allowed the two physicians to feel his pulse, and retiring from the audience room they wrote out their prescription, which was accompanied by a joint report of their diagnosis of the Emperor's condition. It is said that the report was exceptionally long, containing more than 1,000 characters.—South China Post.

Johnston to Return to Hopkinsville
to Resume Inquiry—Bassett Declines Post.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 26.—Adj. Gen. P. P. Johnston held another conference with Governor Willson on the situation in the dark tobacco district, and made him acquainted with the facts and evidence gathered by him during the past few days of his official investigation.

General Johnston and Mott Ayres state five marshals, have succeeded in getting together sufficient evidence to present to the special grand jury to be empaneled by Judge Cook at Hopkinsville on January 2, and it is the belief of the adjutant general that the evidence gathered will be sufficient to warrant numerous indictments being returned by that body.

Governor Willson has instructed Adj. Gen. Johnston to return to the scene of the riot and continue his investigation with a view of running down every man who participated in the raid on Hopkinsville and the destruction of property, and in order to facilitate matters and bring the guilty to justice the governor offered a reward of $500 for the apprehension and conviction of every man who took part in the raid.

Bassett Declines Post.

Governor Willson received a letter from Maj. E. B. Bassett, of Hopkinsville, declining the position of assistant adjutant general of the Kentucky state guard. Maj. Bassett does not give any reasons for declining the appointment, but says that he is much flattered by the offer and will continue to be of service during the trying circumstances now menacing the peace and dignity of the state in western Kentucky.

Rattler Does Not Warn.

This is the one reason for the continued existence of the rattlesnake in the midst of enemies who would exterminate it, for, contrary to the general belief, the rattler rarely gives its characteristic note of warning until actually attacked. In fact, the sharp, vibrant ring of its terminal appendage is probably designed more to assist this very sluggish serpent to obtain its food than to sound defiance or warning. In the first place, serpents possess but the most rudimentary traces of auditory apparatus.

and are practically deaf, the deficiency in the sense of hearing being compensated for by an extreme sensitivity of feeling which makes them aware of the approach of moving objects by the vibration of the ground.

Hunters, treading cautiously upon a soft carpet of moss or leaves to avoid alarming game, will often step close to or over a rattler without disturbing it or giving it warning, and while many snakes are seen and killed by them, it is probable that a far greater number are passed by unnoticed. All snakes are timid and would rather run than fight, and the rattler is not inviting destruction by advertising its whereabouts in the brush.—Outing Magazine.

The Horse and the Hobby.

The Andes photographs of Mars is fond of telling his experience in an insane asylum. A particularly intelligent patient was astride a chair which he was whooping and urging forward as he would a horse.

"That's a fine horse you are riding," remarked the Senator, graciously.

"Horse," inquired the lunatic with considerable disgust. "That isn't a horse; that's a hobby. Don't you know the difference?"

"No," responded the amused Senator.

"Well, you can get down from a horse; but you can't from a hobby."

By the same philosophy Mr. Bryan can be regarded as a democratic hobby. As a candidate he could have been dispensed with long ago.—New York Times.

The Story of a Millionaire.

Dispatches announce the death at Somerville, Mass., of Benjamin Hadley, aged 90, and worth a million and a half. It is said that the old gentleman had some peculiarities.

One correspondent said that Mr. Hadley never joined any kind of organization, never had his life insured, never purchased a ticket for any sort of entertainment, never ate a meal in a hotel or restaurant, and did not spend more than $1 in his entire life for car fare. He had not voted for forty years. He wore a collar and necktie only on special occasions. He accumulated real estate valued at $1,500,000.

The chief point of interest appears to be that he had by these methods accumulated only a million and a half.—St. Louis Times.

Photographing Mars.

The Andes photographs of Mars were made with a large planetary camera which carries with it an amplifying lens. This camera was fastened to the longer end of the large telescope of 18-inch lens, and each of the many little images shown on the plates was taken separately. The telescope was adjusted so that the planet was in the center of the camera field; then the plate holder carrying the sensitive plate was placed in the carrier of the planetary camera and set in position for the first image, the side then being drawn from the plate holder. A bulb in the right hand opened the shutter of the camera, allowing the light from the planet to fall on the sensitive plate, with an exposure of about two seconds. Then a bulb in the left hand shifted the plate a quarter of an inch for the succeeding image; and so on through the entire series of images taken on one plate. Sometimes the plate was arranged to shift from right to left and sometimes in a vertical direction.

Inasmuch as the photographs were made at night, virtually no light except that from Mars reached the plate, and the latter was not incalculably by one exposure from receiving other sensitive impressions. About half an hour was consumed in taking the 60 images on some of the plates, and eight or ten plates were exposed in one night's work. In all, about ten thousand negative images were taken. The plates here reproduced represent the work that was done under the most favorable condition of atmosphere. The one of July 13, taken during the nearest approach of the planet to the earth, was at a distance of 38,500,000 miles. When Mars was at or near the zenith, it was necessary for me to lie on my back while taking the photographs.

As the best "seeing" occurs in "flashes," the successive images on the same negative may differ somewhat in wealth of finer detail; to the skilled eye all show the larger canals with remarkable clearness, though the more delicate details are lost in reproducing. Of the ten thousand separate images of the planet none is destitute of canals, and in some cases as many as 25 or 30 canals have been counted in a single image. Several of the previously observed double canals show their duality on the plates taken during the intervals of best atmospheric conditions.

This has been only the second opposition of Mars during which the canals have been successfully photographed. The first and only previous successful photographic impressions of the canals were obtained at the Lowell observatory, Flagstaff, Ariz., during the opposition of 1906, through the thought and skill of Mr. C. O. Lampland. Two years will elapse before another opposition of the planet, when it makes a still nearer approach to the earth, and after that no favorable opposition will occur for a period of 15 years.

Motor Cars in Turkey.
The Revue Commercial du Levant, referring to the announcement that motor cars, which, up to the present, have been debarred from entering Turkey, are now authorized to do so with certain restrictions, points out that though good roads in the country are non-existent the inhabitants, who delight in novelties, will probably purchase cars which will have to be made solid on account of the inequalities of the road surface. It appears that there are a few provinces which are more fortunate in their roads where, doubtless, a larger opening will be found.

Future to Hear Our Singers.

Paris, Dec. 26.—A talking machine and a number of discs hearing records of the voices of the greatest singers of the twentieth century were deposited in a specially prepared vault in the subterranean passage of the opera house today.

Tamango, Caruso, Scotti, Plancon, Patti, Melka, Calve and others are represented in the selection.

The discs are in double boxes, each separate from the other. Neither light nor air can penetrate the coverings, and it is believed that they can be thus preserved for a century. At the end of a hundred years they can be opened, and the people of that age will have the opportunity of hearing voices of this era as well as seeing the talking machine as manufactured today.

SAY COREY RUES HIS BARGAIN.

Mabelle Gilman Would Make Divorce Easy For Him, It Is Said.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 26.—Has William B. Corey already tired of his young bride, formerly Mabelle Gilman, the actress? Does he again yearn for the wife of his youth and mother of his 20-year-old son Alan? Pittsburg clubmen, some high up in the United States Steel corporation affairs, of which Corey is president, say this is true.

Corey and Mabelle expected to break into New York society. They have not succeeded, many of the men who associate closely with Corey declining to accept invitations to his home. Mabelle longed to enter New York's charmed circles, but realized that she is no nearer success than when she was behind the footlights. For that reason, it is reported here, she would be willing to make divorce easy for Corey.

Mrs. Corey, friends here say, never has forgotten the husband of her youth and is willing to forgive and return to him. All of Corey's family, especially his parents, sympathize deeply with the first Mrs. Corey.

WATCHMAN IN MANHOLE

SPENDS NIGHT IN SEWER.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 26.—Albert Heift, watchman at the Cudahy Packing plant, was assaulted by thugs and thrown through a manhole, and spent the entire night in the big sewer which drains the Union stockyards. He escaped by crawling a mile to where the sewer empties into an open ditch.

The unfortunate man was found, more dead than alive, by the crew of a stockyard's switch engine, who heard his feeble groans as he lay in the half frozen mud. He was dying from exposure when found. When taken to the hospital it was found he had suffered a severe beating before being thrown into the sewer by his assailants, who evidently supposed they had killed him.

Physicians fear the freezing mud in which he must have lain an hour or more may cause severe congestion of the lungs.

RAILROAD NOTES

With only enough men to get out the regular trains and repair emergency breakers, the railroad shops presented a deserted appearance this morning. A majority of the employees have left the city, many of them to remain away until the week's vacation is up.

Master Mechanic J. H. Nash today posted the following telegram, which he had received from Superintendent J. J. Gaven:

"Superintendent of Transportation Keith wires 'Please accept for yourself and employes my heart wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.'"

The work of constructing the coal chute and finishing the big car sheds was suspended but one day by the contractors and the usual large force is employed today at both places. Only a small portion of the roof of the car sheds is left unfinished.

RENTERDAHL

WILL NOT ENJOY TRIP WITH NAVY IT IS THOUGHT.

His Criticism In Condensed Form Sent to Officers of Evans' Fleet For Consideration.

Washington, Dec. 26.—Just how near he came to being sent ashore in Trinidad and allowed to make his way back home as best he could, Henry Renterdahl, critic of the navy now on one of the battleships with Admiral Evans' fleet, may never know. In fact, so far as can be learned, he is not clear of the danger of being sent ashore even yet, and drastic action may be taken in his case.

Renterdahl, a marine artist, and writer, sought and secured permission to make the trip with the fleet as the representative of a British service journal.

A few days after the vessel sailed a magazine published an article written by him dealing in no measured terms with alleged defects in the ships of the navy.

The impressions left in the minds of many by reading the Renterdahl article were that the ships were junk, the naval instructors incompetent and anyone so inclined could wipe the navy off the map by a few hours devoted to the task.

The president was infuriated with the article and the secretary of the navy was equally irritated.

When the president made no statement for publication, the secretary of the navy did say, "Honest reference of opinion is one thing and sneering slurs another."

When the president discovered that Renterdahl was on one of the ships the guest of the government, and with access to every act of the fleet, he even went so far, it is said, as to write a wireless, to Admiral Evans telling him to put Renterdahl ashore. Later this decision was modified when it was pointed out to the president that such an action might be construed to mean that the navy could not stand criticism. There the matter rests. It is possible that Mr. Renterdahl may yet be asked to leave the fleet, but in the event he is not, according to one navy man today, he won't have much fun on the trip.

The fleet officers will get a condensed report of what Renterdahl said, and even if he is not put off I think he will not have much fun for the rest of the trip, after his opinion of the fleet is known to the officers on the boat.

Possibly he thought delaying publication until after the fleet sailed would prevent the fleet captains knowing what he wrote. But it won't. Already the text of his views have been forwarded.

The Evangelical Church.

The Evangelical church on South Fifth street had its Christmas entertainment of the Sunday school pupils last evening. It was a Christmas tree, and each pupil, big and little, received an imitation brick filled with candy from the tree. A musical program was rendered consisting of songs by the choir and Sunday school classes. A pretty feature was the solo of Little Mary Shelton, who sang "Rosy Posy," as she sprang out of a flower pot.

At Misspah Mission.

There will be a Christmas tree for the pupils of Misspah Presbyterian mission on Elizabeth street, tonight at 7:30 o'clock at the mission.

FAITH OF PEOPLE

ing larger than the principles of the party. They note that Roosevelt is about the whole thing as far as the Republican party is concerned, and express grave fears as to the ultimate of such condensation. They point out that candidates are favored or opposed, according as they measure up to or differ from Roosevelt.

Their alarm is not founded in any real cause. It is an evidence of a strong nationalizing tendency when one man can comprehend in his personality, characteristics that typify the whole people. And it is an optimistic sign when this man is endorsed because he typifies the best characteristics in the people. From now on it will require a full-measure man to be a formidable candidate for the presidency, because of this desire in the people to follow one, who best typifies them. No one idea man can succeed. Nor can any candidate, who merely represents a section aspire to be a national figure.

Bryan Too Radical.

Excepting Bryan, there is not a possibility in the Democratic party that would stand any chance of election, no matter whom Republicans nominate. Bryan is the only Democrat who reaches a national measure, and his candidacy will not be successful in an election because he differs from the Roosevelt ideas only in degree. I heard him in Paducah in October and he put a ditto mark under all Roosevelt policies, finding fault only in that Roosevelt had not done more of the same thing. The average sense of the nation is that Roosevelt is radical enough.

Judge Gray may be next to Bryan in point of national strength, but there is a vast difference between the abilities of the two and Judge Gray ranks second only because of the paucity of big men in the party. I heard Governor Johnson in the waterways convention here this month and he is a boy as far as the presidential nomination is concerned. He is immature and in the year between now and election day, could not likely develop to the full presidential stature. In Judge Harmon, Senator Culberson, John Sharp Williams, Governor Folk and others the party has better material but none approaches the necessary specifications. Bryan is the only one and as noted, he has no real issues with the present regime.

But to get back to the original point. Have the Democrats any complaints that will find serious consideration at the hands of the people and so serious that there will be a change? The tariff issue will not be vital as long as prosperity continues, even if an academic analysis shows it to operate disastrously. With the brains of the industrial world in its ranks, financial problems will not embarrass the Republicans if precipitated by the Democrats. I know only of one issue that would make the Republicans sit up and take notice, and which could likely be prosecuted by the Democrats to a real advantage. But the party leaders do not see their chance and if they did, it would take fully four or perhaps eight years to get the country aroused on it. Meanwhile, if the Republicans maintain an even, progressive course, and farming conditions continue favorable, the Democratic party may be in the race perfunctorily, but without any better chance for success than they have had in twelve years. WILLIAM R. SCOTT.

Davis Gives His Girls Jobs.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—Senator Jeff Davis, of Arkansas, who has denounced trusts with such vehemence, has put himself on record as being not opposed to a family trust in matters of patronage. He found at his disposal as senator two appointments, one as private secretary at $1,800, and the other as laborer at $900 a year. He conferred the appointments on his two daughters.
